Topical Index

All Subjects

In Classified Groups Alphabetically Arranged

An index is a necessary implement. Without one, a large work is but a labyrinth without a clue.—Fuller.

The best work in the world owes the most to a good index—Binney.

A duty which editors in general, but especially modern editors, neglect, is that of appending to their works a good index.—H. Rogers.

The Great Departments of Human Knowledge

LITERATURE
FINE ARTS
HISTORY

NOTE.—In preparing this Index for quick and easy reference, classified headings have been simplified by using the terms which first occur to the general reader—for example, Diseases instead of Pathology; Fossils instead of Palæontology; Insects instead of Entomology; Language instead of Philology, etc.

If any general subject, or any indexed subject, does not appear in the Encyclopedia (Volumes I–VI), consult the Dictionary (Volumes VII, VIII), and in the case of historical and geographical topics, consult the Chronological Table of Universal History and the Universal Gazetteer and Atlas.

Chronological Table
Universal History

The First Period of History

B.C.

7000-6000 Nippur, Ur, Eridu and other Sumerian and Accadian cities of ancient Babylonia or Chaldea, founded in the valley of the Euphrates and Tigris.

4500 Foundation of the first Egyptian empire by Mena or Menes; capital, Memphis on the Nile.

4004 The 710th year of the Julian period, when, according to Usher's chronology, published in 1650, the antediluvian patriarchal period of the Hebrews commences: 3950 is the date fixed by Scaliger in 1583; 3761 is the date followed by modern Jews.

4000 Lugal-zaggisi is king of Nippur, Babylonia.

3800 Sargon, an Arabian conqueror, king of Akkad, Babylonia, extends his dominions to the Mediterranean; capital, Agade, in the north of the kingdom.

3700 Cheops, or Khufu, of Egypt, builds the great pyramid at Ghizeh, and his successors, Chephren (Khafra) and Mykerinos (Menkaura), of the fourth dynasty, the other large pyramids.

2950 Fọu-hi ascends the throne of China, and with him the recognized history of the empire commences.

2800 Ur Gur and Dungi are kings of Ur or Uru, Babylonia.

2500 Rise of the kingdom of Elam, east of Babylonia; capital, Susa: the Elamites conquered Babylonia.

2400 Thebes is made the capital of Egypt and is governed by the twelfth dynasty, including Amenemhat I., II., III., Usurtersen I., II., III.

2250 Hammurabi, or Khammurabi, becomes king of Shumer, drives out the Elamites, makes Babylon his capital, and formulates his celebrated code of laws.

2234 Celestial observations of the Chaldeans are begun at Babylon.

2205 Yu, emperor of China, called "the Great," succeeds to the throne, which from this period became hereditary in the eldest son. This monarch was the first of the celebrated dynasty of "Hia."

2190 Amenemhat III. of Egypt constructs the irrigation works of Lake Mœris, the Labyrinth palace and obelisks.

2084 The Hyskos, or Shepherd Kings, seize lower Egypt, where they reign about 260 years.

2000 Babylonia is conquered by the Kaldi, from which tribe it gets the name of Chaldea.

Such are the dawnings of history, which are chiefly derived from archæological and biblical records, and from fragments of ancient history, in which many of the events are recorded, though disguised by traditionary legends and mixed with fable. Many of the dates given are mere approximations. Berosus, the Babylonian historian, makes ten generations between Alorus and Xisuthrus, kings of Chaldea, who reigned before the flood, and these are by some conjectured to correspond with the ten generations of the Scriptures from Adam to Noah. Sanchoniathon of Phœnicia, Manetho the Egyptian, and the Chinese chronologers commence their annals several thousand years prior to the flood.

Although the divisions of time are mostly arbitrary, and vary with different nations, there are many important epochs from which historians have dated events. The principal of these, among the Greeks, was the establishment of the Olympic Games, called the Olympiads, B.C. 884, and among the Romans, the building of Rome, B.C. 753 (ANN. ROMÆ). The most general division of time in present use is the Birth of Christ (B.C. or A.D., before or after as the event may be). There are also different Ages or historical periods of time, which are mentioned by historians as the Heroic Ages, which were anterior to the Trojan War; the Classical Ages, from the period of Homer and Hesiod to the decline of Roman literature under the emperors; the Middle or Mediæval Age, which embraced the period from the fall of the Roman empire to the revival of learning in Western Europe during the fifteenth century.

The most important and distinctive periods in the historical division of time after the early epochs may be classed under seven chronological eras. The first may be calculated from the most prosperous periods in the history of the Assyrian and Egyptian monarchies, about 2000 B.C., to the legendary epoch of the Trojan War, B.C. 1194-1184; the second from that period to the destruction of the great Babylonian empire by Cyrus, king of Persia, B.C. 538; the third, to the death of Alexander the Great, B.C. 323; the fourth, to the birth of Christ, or the Augustan Age of Rome, and the fifth from that time to the fall of the Roman empire in the fifth century, when classical literature became extinct. The sixth era, from this last period to the Reformation, occupying a space of 1000 years, is called the Mediæval or Feudal Age. After this period modern history extends from the fifteenth century to the present time.

Conforming to these eras, or grand divisions of time in the annals of nations, the following Chronological View of History, compiled from the most authentic sources, has been arranged:

Era I.

From the most prosperous periods in the histories of Assyria and Egypt, 2000 years B.C. to the fabulous date of the siege of Troy, B.C. 1194-1184.

Assyria.

B.C.

2000 Assyria, or Asshur, north and east of Babylonia, is settled in this period by Babylonian colonists. It became independent perhaps about 1500, but made little mark in history until the reign of Tiglath-Pileser II., about 1130.

1300 Tiglath-Adar I. conquers Babylonia.

1115 Tiglath-Pileser I. overruns the country from Bagdad and Babylon to the Mediterranean.

Egypt.

2000 The Hyskos, or Shepherd Kings, reign over Egypt.

1920 Abraham enters Egypt.

1800 Thebes revolts against the rule of the Hyskos.

B.C.

1750 Joseph founds political institutions at Memphis.
1684 King Aahmes (Amosis) drives the Hyskos out of Egypt.
1595 Thothmes III. extends his dominions into Asia.
1575 Moses born in Egypt, is instructed in their learning.
1530 He conducts the Israelites out of Egypt.
1325 Egyptian canicular or heliacal year begins.
1300 Rameses II. the Great, the Sesostris of the Greeks, inaugurates the golden period of Egyptian conquest and power.

China.

2200 The national annals of China at this period begin to assume a more regular and authentic shape, the names of the sovereigns being at the same time reduced to a probable duration. The founder of the Hia dynasty, "Yu the Great," is generally represented as being the leader of the first band of colonists from the west.

1766 Chintang founded the Shang dynasty about 120 years before the Exodus of the Israelites from Egypt. He is said to have paid religious worship to Shangti, the Supreme Ruler of the world. This family ruled over the feudal states of the Chinese empire for a period of 644 years, when Wu-Wang dethroned them and founded the illustrious Chau dynasty. During all this early period China was divided into a large number of feudal states, like those of mediæval Europe.

Phœnicia.

2000 The Phœnicians are celebrated as the most skilful and ancient navigators; Sidon being their principal early city. Their traffic by sea is large and important.

1252 Tyre, the rival city of Sidon, built; for centuries afterwards the emporium of the world.

1200 The north coast of Africa and Sicily colonized from Tyre. Phœnicians extend navigation beyond the Mediterranean; importing silver from Tarshish (Spain), tin from England, electrum from Holland and Germany. The products of the interior of Asia and Africa are brought by caravans to the Mediterranean coast, as spices, drugs, gold, ivory, etc.

Judæa.

2000 Judæa was the land of Canaan, or the Palestine of Scriptural history, where dwelt the Philistines, Amalekites, etc.

1985 Abraham arrives in Canaan, from Haran, which begins the 430 years of sojourning. From Abraham and his followers descended the Israelites and other tribes.

1750 Joseph, sold by his brethren to the Egyptians, grew in power there, and obtained for the Hebrews a settlement.

1575 Moses born in Egypt, is adopted by Pharaoh's daughter and instructed in their learning.

1530 Leads the oppressed Israelites out of Egypt, through the Red Sea, and delivers to them, at Mount Sinai, the Ten Commandments.

1515 After sojourning 40 years in the wilderness, the Israelites are led by Joshua into the land of Canaan, and settle in Palestine, "the promised land." The period of the Sabbatical year commences. The Levites are divided amongst the twelve tribes as priests.

B.C.

Greece.

1493 Cadmus, from Phœnicia, introduces alphabetical characters, and founds Thebes.

1485 Danaus, from Egypt, with his fifty daughters, lands at Rhodes in the first ship which appeared in Greece.

1356 Eleusinian Mysteries founded.

1300 Olympic and other games instituted about this period.

1225 Argonautic expedition. Jason, Theseus and Orpheus sail from Thrace to Colchis to fetch the Golden Fleece.

1194 The legendary Heráclidæ make themselves masters of Peloponnesus, from which they are soon compelled to retire. The Trojan war commences.

1184 Destruction of Troy.

The dates here given are those assigned by the Greek histriographers to the events mentioned. Various other such dates might have been given, but modern research finds no evidence for any of these dates, while several of the events mentioned are mere legends. The same must be said of the dates above given under the head of Judæa, these being simply estimates made by various writers. The true dates are unknown.

Italy.

2000 First inhabited by various uncivilized tribes.

1500 The Ausonians in middle and lower Italy; and the Umbri, descendants of the Gauls. Italy is colonized from Greece and Thessaly.

1400 The Tyrrheni, from Lydia, inhabit Etruria and diffuse civilization.

1200 A colony from Arcadia, under Evander, peoples Latium, the country of the Latins. This event is legendary, and the dates given are mere approximations.

Era II.

From the Siege of Troy, assumed date, B.C. 1194-1184, to the destruction of the Babylonian Empire by Cyrus the Great, King of Persia, B.C. 545-538; during which period Judæa reached its most prosperous condition.

Assyria.

911 Rimman-nirani II. and (883-858) his grandson, Assur-natsir-pal, by a long series of cruel wars re-establish the former dominion of Assyria.

858 Shalmaneser establishes the power of Assyria over all Western Asia.

763 A solar eclipse observed which forms the pivotal point in Assyrian chronology.

745 Tiglath-Pileser II. introduces a centralized system of government and (729) subdues Babylonia.

720 Sargon captures Samaria and carries away the "Ten Tribes of Israel."

710 He takes Babylon and is made its king.

700 Sennacherib makes war on Hezekiah, king of Judæa.

681 Esarhaddon invades and conquers Egypt.

667 Assur-bani-pal (Sardanapalus) continues the era of conquest; but a great revolt breaks out.

B.C.

606 Nineveh taken by the Medes, and the Assyrian empire ends. Saracus (Sardanapalus II.) said to have burned himself, with his wives and treasures, in his palace. This incident now discredited.

Babylonia.

606 Nabopolassar, of Babylon, joins the King of Media in the overthrow of Assyria, and the old Kingdom of Babylonia is restored.

600 Nebuchadnezzar conquers Phœnicia, Egypt and Judæa; takes Jerusalem; carries the Jews into captivity; and founds a great Babylonian empire, from the Tigris to the Nile. He builds the celebrated "Hanging Gardens."

546 Cyrus the Great, of Persia, overcomes Crœsus, the rich king of Lydia.

538 Takes the city of Babylon; lays the foundation of the great Persian empire on the ruins of the Assyrian monarchy and gains the dominion of all Asia.

Egypt.

1044 The kingdom of Egypt is divided into smaller states: Bubastis, Sais, etc.

1000 Internal distraction.

900 Sabacus, king of Ethiopia, makes himself master of Egypt.

681 Assyria conquers Egypt.

617 Greeks introduce civilization. Psammetichus first allowed their intercourses.

610 Pharaoh Necho attempted to open a canal from the Nile to the Red Sea.

572 By the conquest of Nebuchadnezzar, Egypt is made part of the Babylonian empire.

Phœnicia.

1000 Hiram, king of Tyre and Sidon, sends architects into Palestine.

900 The golden age of Phœnicia. Dido, from Phœnicia, is the legendary founder of the city of Carthage, which becomes the most important colony of the Phœnicians. Tyre and Sidon the richest cities in the world.

850 Phœnicia conquered by Assyria.

608 Conquered by Egypt.

585 Sidon is conquered and Tyre utterly destroyed, after a siege of thirteen years, by Nebuchadnezzar. The inhabitants retired during the siege, and built the island city of Tyre, two miles from the shore, which rivaled ancient Tyre until destroyed by Alexander the Great.

Judæa.

1150 The Philistines make war upon the Israelites.

1067 Samuel selects Saul for king.

1055 Afterwards anoints David as king, who widely extends the power of the kingdom.

1000 Golden period of the Jewish monarchy. Solomon finishes the Temple of Jerusalem; writes "Proverbs," "Song of Solomon," etc.

975 Internal dissension, and the division of Palestine into two kingdoms —Israel and Judah; Jews denominated from the latter.

720 Israelites and Jews dwell in discord. Israel destroyed by the Assyrian king, Sargon, who carries the ten tribes into captivity.

B.C.

586 Judæa and Jerusalem destroyed; the Babylonish captivity under Nebuchadnezzar.

China.

1122 Wu-Wang, the prince of Chau, was founder of the illustrious dynasty which bore his name. This sovereign, and his brother, Chau, as well as his father, Wang-wang, are among the most distinguished men of Chinese antiquity, and have been celebrated by their biographer, Confucius, for their erudition and integrity. This dynasty continued for 873 years, under thirty-five monarchs, down to B.C. 249, when the family was exterminated by Chwang-siang-wang, the founder of the Tsin dynasty.

1112 The compass is said to have been invented about this time by the preceding monarch.

600 About this period Fohi introduced Buddhism into China.

551 Confucius, or Cong-fu-tse, the celebrated Chinese philosopher, was born. His works have been held in the greatest esteem by the Chinese of all ages as treasures of the purest morality. His descendants to this day are mandarins of the highest button.

Greece.

1104 The Heraclidæ, as legend states, re-enter the Peloponnesus, and take possession of Sparta and other parts of Greece.

1050 Grecian republics formed and colonies founded on the western coast of Asia Minor about this period.

1000 Homer wrote his poems about this date.

850 Lycurgus gives laws to Sparta about this date.

800 Hesiod wrote at this period.

776 Olympic Games become a national festival and the basis of Greek chronology.—760 The Ephori at Sparta.

754 Decennial Archons at Athens.—681 Become annual.

743-724 First Messenian and Spartan war.

685-668 Sparta the most powerful state in Greece. Second Messenian war.

624 Draco gives sanguinary laws at Athens: punishes every fault with death.

600 Thales of Miletus acquires, from the Egyptian priests at Memphis, a knowledge of geometry, astronomy and philosophy; and he calculates eclipses. His scholar, Anaximander, invented globes, dials and the signs of the Zodiac.

594 Solon, archon and lawgiver in Athens, the most cultivated of the Grecian states. Pythian games instituted.

581 Isthmian games, in honor of Neptune.

560 Pisistratus makes himself master of Athens.

Italy and Rome.

1180 In the legend of Troy, the Trojans, under Æneas, settle in Italy at this period. Their arrival forms the subject of Virgil's Æneid.

753 Rome, a colony from Alba Longa, is founded by Romulus, the first king.

753-509 Traditional period of kingly rule.

Era III.

From the establishment of the Persian Empire under Cyrus, B.C. 538, to the death of Alexander the Great, B.C. 323; which forms the most important period in the history of Persia, and the Golden Era of Greece.

B.C.

Egypt.

525 Cambyses, king of Persia, subjugates Egypt and annexes it to the Persian empire.
400 Frequent revolts, assisted by the Greeks.
340 Second Persian conquest.
332 Conquered by Alexander the Great, and made part of the Macedonian empire.
331 The city of Alexandria built; becomes the emporium of commerce, on the destruction of Tyre by Alexander.

Persia.

525 Cambyses, the son of Cyrus, effects the conquest of Egypt.
508 Darius reduces all India to subjection. The dominion of Persia is thus extended from the Indus to the Nile.
490 The Persians, under the generals of Darius, attempt to conquer Greece, but are beaten at Marathon.
480 Xerxes commands a second expedition of above 1,000,000 men and a fleet of 2,000 ships; the latter is destroyed by the sea fight at Salamis, when Xerxes and his army take to flight.
401 Cyrus the Younger revolts against his brother, Artaxerxes II. The retreat of the 10,000 Greeks under Xenophon.
334-331 Babylon and the principal cities of the Persian empire are conquered by Alexander the Great.
330 Death of Darius III., which terminates the Persian empire. In 218 A.D. a new empire, governed by the dynasty of the Sassanides, was formed by Artaxerxes, son of Susson; and for several centuries much of its old importance was restored.

Judæa.

536 Cyrus issues an edict in favor of the Jews and allows them to return to Palestine.—519 Which is confirmed by Darius.
515 Building of the second temple finished under Darius.
430 Period of the Old Testament ends.

Greece and Macedon.

526 First public library at Athens.
508 Pisistratidæ abandon Attica.
500 The Greeks of Asia Minor league with the Athenians, whence the Persian War.
490 Army of Darius beaten at Marathon by Miltiades.
481 The second expedition under Xerxes.
480 Defence of Thermopylæ by Leonidas, and naval victory of Salamis by Themistocles.
479 Remnant of the army of Xerxes dispersed at Platææ.
470-431 The most flourishing area of Greece, for about forty years. The age of Pericles, Æschylus, Sophocles, Thucydides, Herodotus, Phidias, etc. The Grecian states grow discordant and lose their freedom. The defeated Messenians quit the Peloponnesus. Rivalry between Athens and Sparta, with which this era ends.

B.C.

404 This war ends with the capture of Athens and the triumph of Sparta over Athenian power.

399 Socrates put to death.

372 Epaminondas, the Theban, gains the victory of Leuctra over the Spartans.

362 Battle of Mantinæa, in which Epaminondas again defeats the Spartans.

355 Sacred war against the Phœnicians. Demosthenes. Sacred war against the Locrians excited by Philip of Macedon.

338 Philip gains the battle of Cheronæa and the sovereignty of Greece. He becomes the generalissimo of the Grecians against the Persians.

336 Alexander the Great succeeds his father, Philip.

335 Thebes taken and destroyed by Alexander.

334 He causes himself to be declared generalissimo of the Greeks against the Persians in a diet assembled at Corinth. Alexander sets out for Persia.

333 Battle of the Granicus, followed with the conquest of almost all Asia Minor. Battle of Issus.

332 Alexander makes himself master of Tyre, after a siege of seven months.

331 Alexander subdues Egypt and builds the city of Alexandria. Defeats the Persians at Arbela and captures Babylon, Susa and Persepolis.

329 Alexander, after having subdued the Sogdians and Bactrians, builds a city upon the Jaxartes, to which he gives his name.

327 His entrance into India. He gains a great victory over Porus on the banks of the Hydaspes.

323 Alexander, on his return from his conquests, dies at Babylon, at the age of 33. Alexander's generals divide the provinces among themselves. From this time commences the era of the empire of the Ptolemies in Egypt.

[During this period all the arts were carried to a very high state of perfection. Though the Eastern nations had raised magnificent and stupendous structures, the Greeks were the first people in the world who, in their works of architecture, added beauty to magnificence and elegance to grandeur. The temples of Jupiter and Olympus and the Ephesian Diana are the first monuments of taste. Phidias, the Athenian, who died B.C. 432, is the first sculptor whose works have become immortal. Zeuxis, Parrhasius and Timanthes, during the same age, first discovered the power of the pencil and all the magic of painting. Literary composition, too, in its various branches, reached a noble degree of perfection.]

Carthage.

869 The city of Carthage was originally, if we can credit legend, founded by Queen Dido, a Tyrian princess, although it does not come into historical notice before the time of the Persian invasion, B.C. 500, when Darius courted its alliance on meditating the conquest of Greece. Carthage may be said to have risen into opulence from the period of the destruction of Tyre and Sidon, when she carried on the chief trade of the Mediterranean. The Carthaginians people Ivica, conquer Corsica and colonize Italy.

B.C.

509 First alliance with Rome.

481 Hamilcar attacks the Greeks in Sicily, but is beaten by Gelon

445 Free themselves from tribute to the Africans.

340 Their wars with Sicily generally successful, till defeated by Timoleon.

Rome.

509 After having been governed by seven kings in succession, Tarquin is expelled, and Rome is afterwards governed by Consuls, or other republican magistrates.

451 Laws of the Twelve Tables framed.

390 Rome is taken by the Gauls. The history of Rome, however, for the first four centuries of its existence, is comparatively unknown and is confined chiefly to domestic events or to petty wars with neighboring states. We have at least inferential evidence that it was of little account in the time of Alexander the Great, in the fact that Aristotle, though he wrote largely on the Carthaginian government and noticed its connection with the Etruscans, does not even mention Rome. The authenticity of the early part of Roman history is doubtful. It is allowed that for the first five centuries after the foundation of the city there were no historians. The first is Fabius Pictor, who lived during the second Punic war. Livy says that almost all the ancient records were destroyed when Rome was taken by the Gauls.

Era IV.

From the death of Alexander the Great, B.C. 323, to the reign of Augustus Cæsar, or the birth of Christ; which forms the most brilliant period in the victorious career of Rome.

Egypt.

321 On the death of Alexander, and the division of the Macedonian empire, Ptolemy Soter obtains Egypt.

285 Alexandria the capital and seat of learning.

285 Ptolemy Philadelphus, according to tradition, employs 72 interpreters to translate the Old Testament into the Greek language, called the "Septuagint Version."

283 Alexandrian Library founded. The first three of the Ptolemies extend commerce and cultivate the Grecian arts and sciences.

247 Ptolemy III. succeeds. The golden period of the Ptolemies.

221 Ptolemy IV. succeeds. The kingdom declines.

190 Asia Minor conquered by Rome.

162 Romans divide the monarchy.

82 Lathyrus ruins Thebes for the purpose of destroying the rebels.

48 Disputed succession of Ptolemy XIII. determined by Octavius Cæsar in favor of Cleopatra, who gains the affections of Marc Antony.

31 Antony and Cleopatra war with Octavius; are defeated at Actium.

30 Cleopatra and Marc Antony destroy themselves, and Egypt becomes a Roman province.

B.C.

Syria.

301 On the division of the Macedonian empire, the second Assyrian monarchy, which had been successively included in the Babylonian, Persian and Macedonian kingdoms, was possessed by Antigonus, when Seleucus Nicator, ruler of Eastern Asia, defeated Antigonus at Ipsus and conquered Syria, which afterwards remained under the Seleuci; and this formed the era of the Seleucidæ.

290 Seleucus builds forty cities in Asia.

190 Antiochus the Great, who had given refuge to Hannibal and made war against Rome, was defeated at Magnesia.

170 Antiochus Epiphanes makes himself master of all Egypt, and marches afterwards to Jerusalem, where he cruelly persecuted the Jews.

65 Antiochus Asiaticus deposed by Pompey; when Syria became a Roman province.

Judæa.

285 Ptolemy Philadelphus conquers Palestine, and carries many thousand Jews into Egypt.

168 Jerusalem burned by Antiochus Epiphanes.

31 Herod appointed king of the Jews by Augustus.

19 Rebuilds the Temple.

China.

249 The Chau dynasty was overthrown by Tsin Chi Hoang-ti, a prince of Tsin, who established the dynasty which bears his name. He effected several important reforms in the state, and divided the country into thirty-six provinces, over which he placed governors.

221 This prince assumed the name of Hwang-ti, or Emperor.

This monarch was one of those extraordinary men who turn the course of events and give an impress to subsequent ages. He made progress through his dominions with a splendor hitherto unknown, built public edifices, opened roads and canals to facilitate intercourse and trade between the provinces, and repressed the incursions of the northern tribes, driving them into the wilds of Mongolia. In order to keep these invaders out effectually, Hwang-ti conceived the idea of extending and uniting the walls which the princes of some of the northern states had erected on their frontier into one grand wall, stretching across the empire from the sea to the desert. This gigantic undertaking was completed in ten years, and it has made the name of Hwang-ti celebrated throughout the world. Irritated by the literati, he sought to destroy all books, except those dealing with science and industry, written anterior to his own reign. Orders were issued that every such book should be burned, and especially the writings of Confucius and Mencius, upon the feudal states of Chau, whose remembrance he wished to blot out. Not only were the books sought after to be destroyed, but nearly five hundred literati were buried alive, in order that no one might remain to reproach, in their writings, the First Emperor with having committed so barbarous and insane an act.

B.C.

202 The dynasty of Tsin was overthrown by Liu Pang, a prince of Han, who was the founder of the illustrious house of that name. His accession is regarded as the commencement of "Modern Chinese" history. His family swayed the Middle Kingdom, under twenty-six monarchs, till the year A.D. 221. This is considered as the most brilliant period of Chinese history. The number and character of the heroes and literati of China, it is affirmed, were not surpassed even by those of the western world, which was then in the plentitude of intellectual greatness.

Macedon and Greece.

323 These provinces, on the division of the Macedonian empire, were obtained by Antipater. They continued to be convulsed by civil wars, which the victorious Romans turned to their own advantage.

286 Pyrrhus expelled from Macedon by Lysimachus.

281 Lysimachus is defeated and killed by Seleucus.

251 Aratus persuades the people of Sicyon to join the Achæan league.

188 Sparta was obliged to renounce the Institutions of Lycurgus.

168 Macedon, by the defeat of Perseus at the battle of Pydna, was reduced to a Roman province.

146 Also the Grecian states, the Roman general Mummius defeating the Achæans and destroying Corinth.

86 Sylla defeats Mithradates in Greece, conquers Athens, and sends its valuable libraries to Rome.

Carthage.

263 Beginning of the first Punic war with the Romans, which lasts twenty-four years.

259 Sea fight between the Romans and Carthaginians near the coast of Mylæ.

255 Xanthippus, the Spartan, aids the Carthaginians and takes prisoner the Roman general Regulus.

249 Regulus is sent to Rome to propose the exchange of prisoners. At his return the Carthaginians put him to death with torture for advising against them.

241 Defeat of the Carthaginians near the Island of Ægates, followed by a treaty that ends the first Punic war.

237 The Carthaginians give up Sardinia to the Romans and engage to pay them 1,200 talents.

229 Hamilcar, fighting against Rome, is killed in Spain.

221 Hannibal, his son, made general of the army.

219 He lays siege to Saguntum, and the second Punic war commences.

218 He crosses the Pyrennees and Alps, conquers the intermediate territory, and arrives in Italy with 26,000 men. He beats two Roman armies.

217 Conquers a third army.

216 The Romans lose the battle of Cannæ.

215-205 Failing to receive succor from Carthage, Hannibal sustained several defeats.

202 The Romans effecting a landing in Africa, Hannibal was compelled to return; but was overthrown by Scipio at Zama.

183 Hannibal, after fleeing to Asia, poisons himself at Eithynia.

B.C.

149 Carthage resists the encroachments of Masinissa, the Numidian king and ally of Rome, which the latter resents; hence the third Punic war.

146 The Carthaginians pulled down their houses to build ships with the timber, and the women gave their hair for bow-strings. Carthage was taken and destroyed by Scipio the Younger, and its inhabitants exterminated by fire and sword, when the whole territory became Roman.

Pontus.

104 The kingdom of Pontus, situated in Asia Minor, was founded by Mithridates I. (having been previously subject to the Persians).

88 And is famous for the celebrated contest carried on by Mithridates VI., commonly called The Great, against all the powers of the Romans.

63 When he was eventually subdued by Pompey and his dominions reduced to a Roman province.

Rome.

280 The Romans, hitherto unknown in the great history of nations, having subdued all lower and upper Italy, gradually emerge from their national obscurity; and while the other great empires of antiquity were losing strength, Rome assumed the most prominent place in the scale of nations. The wars with Pyrrhus, king of Eripus, and with the Tarentines, first brought the Romans into general notice.

274 Pyrrhus's expulsion from Italy, made the Roman name known and respected in Greece, Sicily and Africa.

263 The first Punic war begins, and continues for twenty-four years.

259 The Carthaginian fleet defeated by Duilius.

255 Regulus defeated by Xanthippus.

240 Plays first acted at Rome, being those of Livius Andronicus.

235 The Temple of Janus shut at Rome the first time since Numa.

226 The war between Cleomenes and Aratus begins, and continues for several years.

225 The Romans first cross the Po, pursuing the Gauls, who had entered Italy. They send a famous embassy to impart to the Greeks the treaty they had lately concluded with the Illyrians. The Corinthians declare, by a public decree, that they shall be admitted to a share in the celebration of the Isthmian games. The Athenians also grant them the freedom of Athens.

218 The second Punic war begins, and continues seventeen years.

217 The battle of Thrasymenus, and next year that of Cannæ.

214 The Romans begin the auxiliary war against Philip in Epirus, which is continued by intervals for fourteen years.

212 Syracuse taken by Marcellus, after a siege of three years. Archimedes slain.

202 The battle of Zama, when Hannibal is defeated by Scipio.

189 The luxuries of Asia brought to Rome.

179 Numa's books found in a stone coffin at Rome.

159 Time measured out at Rome by a water machine, invented by Scipio Nasica, 134 years after the introduction of sun-dials.

149 The third Punic war begins.

B.C.

148 The Romans make war against the Achæans, which is finished the next year by Mummius.
147 Carthage is destroyed by Scipio, and Corinth by Mummius.
141 The war of Numantia begins, and continues for eight years.
138 The Roman army, under Mancinus, is defeated by the Numantines.
136 The famous embassy of Scipio, Metellus, Mummius and Panætius into Egypt, Syria and Greece.
133 Numantia taken. Pergamus annexed to the Roman empire.
123 The Romans make war against the pirates of the Baleares.
121 Caius Gracchus killed.
118 Dalmatia conquered by Metellus.
111 The Jugurthin war begins, and continues for five years.
109 The Teutones and Cimbri begin the war against Rome, and continue it for eight years.
105 The Teutones defeat 80,000 Romans on the banks of the Rhone.
102 The Teutones defeated by Marius at Aquæ Sextiæ.
101 The Cimbri defeated by Marius and Catulus.
91 The Social War begins, and continues three years, till finished by Sylla.
88 The Mithridatic war, which lasts twenty-six years.
88 The civil wars of Marius and Sylla begin, and continue six years.
82 Young Marius is defeated by Sylla, who is made dictator.
78 The death of Sylla.
73 The servile war, under Spartacus, begins.
66 Mithridates conquered by Pompey in a night battle.
63 Catiline's conspiracy detected by Cicero. Mithridates kills himself.
59 The first triumvirate, in the persons of Julius Cæsar, Pompey and Crassus.
58 Cicero banished from Rome, and recalled the next year.
55 Cæsar passes the Rhine, defeats the Germans and invades Britain.
50 Civil war between Cæsar and Pompey.
48 The battle of Pharsalia.
46 The war of Africa. Cato kills himself. Calendar corrected by Cæsar with the help of the astronomer Sosigenes.
44 Cæsar slain by Republican conspirators and patriots.
43 The second triumvirate, in Octavius, Antony and Lepidus. Cicero put to death.
42 The battle of Philippi; defeat and death of Brutus and Cassius; end of the republic.
36 Pompey the Younger defeated in Sicily by Octavius.
31 The battle of Actium and defeat of Antony.
30 Egypt reduced into a Roman province.
27 The title of Augustus given to Octavius.
25 The Egyptians adopt the Julian year. About this time flourished Virgil, Pollio, Mæcenas, Strabo, Horace, Propertius, Livy, Tibulus, Ovid, Vitruvius, etc.
17 The secular games celebrated at Rome.
15 The Rhæti and Vindelici defeated by Drusus.
12 The Pannonians conquered by Tiberius.
11 Some of the German nations conquered by Drusus.
[Birth of Christ, according to the common era, 4714 of the Julian period, and A.R. 753.]

B.C.

[Notwithstanding the intestine contentions and civil wars to which Rome had been subjected, she had now arrived at the zenith of political power and national greatness, and had succeeded in completing the destruction of all the kings who had presumed to oppose her. Indeed, there never was a time when Rome, or any city in the world, was so magnificent, so populous and so refined. The empire was now brought very near to its utmost extent. In Europe it included Italy, Gaul, Spain, Greece, Illyricum, Pannonia, Britain and some part of Germany; in Asia, all those provinces which went under the name of Asia Minor, together with Armenia, Syria, Judæa, Mesopotamia and Media; in Africa, almost all those parts of it which were then supposed habitable, namely, Egypt, Numidia, Mauritania and Libya; the whole of their empire comprising an extent of between three and four thousand miles in length and half as much in breadth. The number of the citizens amounted to 4,063,000; and the improvements in the polite learning of that age have never been surpassed.]

Spain and Portugal.

230 The Celtic, or original, inhabitants conquered by the Carthaginians.
200 Becomes a Roman province (Hispania.)

Era V.

From the birth of Christ (commonly called the Augustan Age), to the fall of the Roman empire, A.D. 476-493; when the western world is overrun by the Goths, Vandals, Huns, etc.

A.D.

China.

65 In the reign of Ming-ti a deputation was sent westward to India, who on their return established the doctrines of Buddha as one of the religious beliefs of the Chinese. Under this monarch and his successors, Chang-ti and Hoti, the great conqueror Panchow penetrated with his army as far westward as the Caspian Sea, dividing and overcoming the various tribes on the confines of the desert and at the foot of the Celestial Mountains, and extending the limits of the monarchy in that direction much farther than they are at present.
166 The Romans send an embassy to China, to establish a trade in silk.
284 The Romans send a second embassy to China.
420 The Song dynasty established by Lieouyu, a conquering general.

Rome.

14 Death of Augustus. At this period the history of the whole world is centered in Imperial Rome. Under Augustus she continued to enjoy universal peace and prosperity; and magnificent temples, palaces, theatres and baths, adorned with innumerable statues of brass and sculptured marble, were everywhere erected, the ruins of which still remain. But under the reigns of the succeeding emperors the greatness of Rome began gradually to decline, and luxury and vice to usurp the place of that patriotism and virtue on which her political prosperity had been originally founded. Most of the successors of Augustus were weak and wicked men.

A.D.

37 Tiberius, under whose reign Christ was crucified, dies.
41 Caligula, imbecile and half insane, murdered.
54 Claudius poisoned by Agrippina.
64 Nero persecutes the Christians.
68 Kills himself.
69 Galba, penurious, slain.
69 Otho, prodigal, stabs himself.
69 Vitellius, debauched, slain.
69 Vespasian succeeds as emperor.
70 Titus, surnamed "the good," destroys Jerusalem.
81 Domitian, last of the "Twelve Cæsars." Julius Agricola conquers in Britain as far as the Grampian Hills.
96 Nerva succeeds.
98 Trajan succeeds.
From 96 to 180 virtuous emperors reigned. Trajan conquers Dacia.
120 Hadrian builds the wall in Britain from Carlisle to Newcastle.
131 Revolt and exile of the Jews.
161 Antonius Pius dies.
180 Marcus Aurelius dies. These eighty-four years were the most happy of the Roman monarchy. From 180 the emperors were chiefly licentious men.
192 Commodus dies; soldiers dispose of the throne.
208 Severus, military government; conquest in Britain.
211 Builds the Picts' wall.
217 Caracalla murdered.
222 Heliogabalus detested and slain.
235 Alexander Severus slain.
235 Maximin (a herdsman) becomes emperor.
248 Millenial duration of Rome.
260 Valerian is taken and put to death by the Persians.
268 The Germans enter Italy, the Persians Asia Minor. Odenatus and Zenobia revolt.
275 Aurelian subdues Zenobia; gives up Dacia to the barbarians.
286 Diocletian takes Maximinian as his colleague.
292 Each emperor chooses his coadjutor; Galerius and Constantius. The empire is divided into four parts.
304 Diocletian and Maximinian resign. Six emperors reign. Partition of the empire between Constantine and Lucinius.
313 Christianity made the religion of the state.
323 Constantine becomes sole emperor; transfers the seat of empire from Rome to Byzantium (Constantinople).
361 Julian the apostate reigns.
395 The great migration of nations. The Goths commit great ravages. The empire is divided into Eastern and Western, with Rome and Constantinople as their respective capitals.
410 Alaric, the Visigoth, besieges and takes Rome.
455 Genseric, the Vandal, in Rome.
476 Romulus Augustulus abdicates.
476-493 The western empire of Rome is dissolved, and Odoacer, leader of the Heruli, reigns.
[During the last century or two of the above period the western world is overrun by barbarous military adventurers, who endeavor to possess themselves of new settlements. Thus Europe becomes, as it were, peopled with a new race, when new governments, manners and languages arise, and ancient learning becomes extinct. The Roman empire had lost its force. It contained within itself the seeds of dissolution, and the violent irruptions of the Goths, Vandals, Huns and other barbarians hastened its destruction. These fierce tribes, who came to take vengeance on the empire, either inhabited the various parts of Germany, which had never been subdued by the Romans, or were scattered over the vast countries of the north of Europe and the northwest of Asia which are now inhabited by the Danes, the Swedes, the Poles, the subjects of the Russian empire and the Tartars. Wherever the barbarians marched their route was marked with blood. They ravaged or destroyed all around them. Contemporary authors who beheld that scene of desolation are at a loss for expressions to describe its horrors. "The Scourge of God," "The Destroyer of Nations," are the epithets by which they distinguish the most noted of the ruthless leaders. In this great migration of military barbarians the following appear the principal nations:

Goths,

180 A people residing on the Vistula and Oder, first took possession of the coast of the Black Sea.

249 They crossed the Danube; defeated and killed the emperor Decius.

274 The emperor Aurelian gave up Dacia to them.

360 They extended their conquests east and west, dividing themselves into Ostro (or East) Goths, on the Black Sea, and Visi (or West) Goths, in Dacia and Podolia.

The Ostrogoths,

375 Who had dislodged the Vandals, expelled by the Huns and Alani.

454 They are subdued by the Huns.

489 Possess themselves of Pannonia; obtain annual tribute from the Greek emperors; enter Italy.

555 And reign there till subdued by Justinian.

The Visigoths,

375 In Dacia and Podolia, are dislodged by the Ostrogoths, cross the Danube, and put themselves under Roman protection in Thrace.

378 Oppressed by the Roman governors, they revolt, defeat the Roman army and kill the emperor Valens.

395 Under Alaric they plunder the Peloponnesus.

401 Invade and plunder Italy.

409 Rome is taken and plundered.

418 Proceed into Gaul and Spain, and found the kingdom of the Visigoths (Toulouse).

470 Encroach on the Suevi in Gallicia (Spain); extend their territory on the Rhone and Loire.

474 Receive written law.

A.D.

Teutones or Germans.

335 The ancient names of the German tribes were lost at the end of the second century. In the third century we find Franks upon the left bank of the Rhine (Swabia); the most dangerous enemies of the Romans. The Saxons and Frisii (mariners) in the North. In the reign of the emperor Theodosius, when the north and north-eastern nations pressed forward, the Germans crossed the Rhine, and drove the Romans out of Spain, France, and Portugal.

Alani.

375 Inhabitants of Mount Caucasus were partly subjugated by the Huns.
407 One division proceeded towards the West, dislodging the Vandals and Suevi, and advancing with them, crossed the Rhine into Gallia and Spain.
412 Were weakened by the Visigoths (who followed them), and disappeared amongst the Vandals, who passed from Spain into Africa.

Huns.

The Huns originally inhabited Asia, and led a wandering life. Were driven out of Mongolia by the Chinese; crossed the Volga and the Don, partly subjugated the Alani, and united with them on the Don; dislodging the Goths (who had come down from the coasts of the Black Sea and the Baltic).
395 Extending their sway as far as the Danube, which they crossed, they entered Pannonia and Mœsia.
433-453 Under Attila, called "The Scourge of God," are victorious in the east.
447 Render Constantinople tributary, and make devastating excursions through Germany and France.
451 Are defeated at Chalons-sur-Marne. At the death of Attila their empire falls, and they disappear; when the released German nations redouble their attack on the Western Roman empire.

Vandals.

376 A tribe of Silesia and Bohemia bordering on the Suevi, are pressed forward by the Alani to the West.
407 Combine with the Suevi and Alani; vanquish the Franks; cross the Rhine, and proceed through Gallia into Spain.
411 Subjugate the Alani; harassed by the Visigoths.
429 Pass into Africa.
[The kingdom of the Vandals was eventually destroyed by the Grecian imperial army under Belisarius.]

Sclavonians.

The Sclavonian nations, from the East, wander into the northeastern parts of Germany, which had been depopulated by the great migration of nations, and occupy the whole eastern territory from the mouth of the Oder to the Adriatic Gulf.
496 Seize Poland, Bohemia, etc.

Franks.

287 The Celts, or Franks, inhabit the left bank of the Rhine.
407 The Salians (chief tribe of the Franks) in Belgium. The Franks, being defeated by the Vandals,

A.D.

482 Are confined to the mouth of the Rhine (Belgic Gulf); when they are found on the Maine. First monarchy of the Franks (giving name to France) from the Rhine to the Seine and Loire; still holding their former possessions, and restraining the Visigoths to Languedoc. Salic Law.

Burgundians.

407 Inhabiting the Vistula, cross the Rhine.

411 Pass through Germany into France, and acquire territory on the Rhone.

Spain and Portugal.

409 Abandoned to the Vandals, Alani, and Suevi.

418 The Visigoths succeed them, and found a kingdom.

England—The Britons and Anglo-Saxons.

Though Britain had been partly subjected to the Romans from the time of Julius Cæsar, many severely contested battles took place from the time of their subjugation.

51 Caractacus, the British king, having been defeated in a great battle, was carried in chains to Rome.

61 Boadicea, the British queen, defeats the Romans; but is conquered soon after by Suetonius, governor of Britain.

85 Julius Agricola, governor of South Britain, to protect the civilized Britons from the incursions of the Caledonians under Galgacus on the Grampian Hills, first sails round Britain, which he discovers to be an island.

121 The Caledonians reconquer from the Romans all the southern parts of Scotland; upon which the emperor Hadrian builds a wall between Newcastle and Carlisle.

426 The Romans, reduced to extremities at home, withdraw their troops from Britain, and never return; advise the Britons to arm in their own defence, and trust to themselves.

449 Vortigern, king of the Britons, invites the Saxons from the Elbe and the Weser into Britain against the Scots or Picts.

455 The Saxons having repulsed them, invite over more of their countrymen, and begin, by force of arms, to establish themselves in Kent, under Hengist. The Britons, after a hard struggle for nearly 150 years, are eventually compelled to take refuge in Wales and Cornwall.

Era VI.

From the fall of the Western Empire of Rome, A.D. 476-493, to the extinction of the Eastern Empire, and the commencement of the Reformation at the close of the fifteenth century (called the middle or feudal age); which comprehends the most prosperous eras of Papal ascendancy in the West, and of Saracenic domination in the East.

China.

627 The earlier dynasties having passed away, Li-Chimin, the son of the founder of the Tang dynasty, ascended the throne. He is celebrated in the Eastern annals for his wisdom, liberality, and nobleness of character. He extended his victorious arms in every direction, and was the author of a code of laws for the observance of his governors and high officers of state. His frontiers extended to the borders of Persia, the Caspian Sea, and the Altai of the Kirghis Steppe. He founded the Imperial Library and the great College.

643 Theodosius, the emperor of Constantinople, as well as the king of Persia, sent envoys to Li-Chimin, at Singan, with presents of rubies and emeralds. The Nestorian Missionaries also presented themselves at court, and the monarch, who had assumed the name of "Tai-tsong," heard them rehearse the leading tenets of their faith. He ordered a temple to be erected at his capital, and had some of their sacred books translated for his examination. During the 287 years that this line of princes held the throne, China was probably the most civilized country on earth; and the darkest days of the West, when the Christian world was wrapped in the deep gloom of ignorance and bigotry, formed her brightest era.

1127 The Southern Sung dynasty was established, and existed, under nine emperors, till 1280.

1268 The Tartars invade China, and expel many of the natives.

1280 The Moguls complete the conquest of China, under Kublai, grandson of Genghis Khan, and began the dynasty of Yuen, which continued, under ten emperors, till the year 1368. Under the reign of Kublai, the grand canal of China was dug, which still remains a lasting monument of his sagacity and enlightened policy. His deeds have been related by Marco Polo.

1368 A revolution took place under the influence and direction of Chu Yuenchang, or Hong-wu, the founder of the Ming, or "Bright dynasty." He was originally a priest and a plebeian by birth; but owing to the misrule, weakness, and luxury of the Mongolian sovereigns, he was enabled to raise the standard of revolt, and finally to expel them. He established his capital at Nankin, on the river Yang-tse-kiang, and received ambassadors at his court from Tamerlane and the emperor of Constantinople. His dynasty endured for 272 years under sixteen emperors.

1403 Yungloh, the son of Hong-wu, wrested the throne from his nephew, and removed the capital to Peking, in Chih-li. This prince is distinguished for the code of laws framed under his auspices, which has, with some modifications and additions, ever since remained as the basis of the administration. So prosperous was the empire during his reign that he was enabled to maintain a fleet manned with 30,000 sailors, which at various times went to the Moluccas, Java, Borneo, Manilla, Sumatra, Cochin-China, Siam, Molucca, Bengal, and Ceylon. These ships brought back to China enormous riches, and all the princes of the countries which they visited sent embassies to the sovereign of China.

1580 It was about this period, during the reign of Wanleih, that the Portugese came to China, and the Jesuits gained an entrance into the country.

[For the overthrow of the Mings, and the establishment of the present Manchu or Tsing dynasty, see dates 1618 and 1644 under the following Era.]

A.D.

Eastern Empire of Rome.

Amidst the revolutions of nations, and the great changes of manners caused by the irruptions of northern barbarians and military adventurers, the Grecian or Eastern empire of Rome, established at Constantinople, alone preserved itself from change or conquest, although it was repeatedly attacked, and some provinces plundered. Under the reign of Justinian, an attempt was made to reinstate the shattered remains of the Western Roman Empire, by Belisarius, who subdued the empire of the Vandals, and conquered the northern cost of Africa; and subsequently by Narses, who overcame the Goths, and recovered Italy. But these conquests were not long retained; their power was kept in check; North Italy was conquered by the Longobards, and the Romans were completely expelled from Africa by the Arabs.

529 Compilation of the Justinian code, comprising all preceding constitutions, including the code of Theodosius II. (A.D. 438).

565 The empire declines in power and extent.

726 Leo III. interdicts the worship of images.

754 Constantine V. suppresses cloisters.

897 Basilius I., the Macedonian legislator and economist, victorious against the Arabs and Bulgarians.

1081 The reign of Alexander Comnenus is rendered illustrious by the pen of his daughter, the Princess Anna Comnena.

1204 Constantinople besieged and taken by the Latins; again besieged and taken by the French and Venetians, who elect Baldwin, count of Flanders, emperor of the East.

1260 Michael Palæologus founds a family of distinguished emperors.

1261 Constantinople recovered from the Latins by the Greek emperors of Nice.

1422 Besieged by Amurath, the Turkish emperor.

1453 Mahomet II. takes Constantinople, from which time may be dated the fall of the Eastern empire, and the extinction of the Imperial families of Comneni and Palæologi.

Italy and the Popes.

492 The Papal power commences with Gelasius, bishop of Rome, the will of the monarch being made subordinate to that of the Pope.

493-554 The Ostrogoths, under Theodoric, conquer and retain the kingdom of Italy.

554 The Greeks hold possession of Italy.

568 But are dispossessed of North Italy by the Longobards, a German tribe from the Baltic, who are admitted by Justinian. The territory is now divided into Northern Italy, under the Longobards (Lombards), and Southern Italy, under the Greeks.

774 On the conquest of Charlemagne, Italy is again divided into Upper Italy, under the Franks; Lower Italy, under the Grecians; and Middle Italy, the Pope's territory. Boniface preaches Papal supremacy in Germany. Leo III. acknowledged first bishop of the West, but remains a vassal of the Frankish king.

872 Pope Adrian II. "releases from the obligation of an oath."

1000 Civilization and hereditary fiefs. The principal towns become republics; the dukes and counts sovereigns. Villanage abolished.

1073 Gregory VII. compels the emperor's prefect at Rome to swear obedience.

A.D.

1095 Celibacy. Investiture. First Crusade.

1099 Knights of St. John.

1118 Knights of the Temple.

1130 In Grecian or Lower Italy, the kingdom of Naples and Sicily erected.

1220 Venice an independent state; golden period of commerce. Cities of Venice, Genoa, and Pisa, chiefly furnished ships for the Crusades.

1342 Factions of the Guelphs and Ghibellines. The Medici. Papal indulgences.

1378-1417 Schism in the Romish Church.

1400 Decay of ecclesiastical power; discontent excited by annats, expectancies, tithes, and sale of indulgences, which eventually brings on the Reformation.

1400 A taste for the fine arts and a spirit for learning awakened. Italy became the nursery of cultivation for all Europe about this time.

Grecian Empire.

732 The Greeks, after struggling against the barbarous nations of the north and east, are hard pressed by the Arabs, but saved as an effect of the victory of Tours.

1000 They lose territory, which is taken by the Bulgarians on Mount Hæmus. Are pressed by the Russians.

1070 And by the Turks.

1204 The Grecian empire is divided. Out of it arise the kingdom of Thessalonica; Venice, with the Morea, Candia, and other islands; the Latin empire in Constantinople; and the Greek empire in Nicæa.

1453 Constantine IX. falls in the defence of Constantinople against the Turks.

1455-1462 Athens, Thebes, Morea, Lesbos, and other Grecian states fell under the dominion of the Turks, and the cultivated Greeks fled from the barbarians into Italy, where they were received with great respect, especially at Florence, by the reigning house of Medici. There they propagated a knowledge of the ancient Greek authors; and literature, enriched from those stores, expanded the human intellect.

Lombards.

548 The Longobards, or Lombards, were a tribe from the shores of the Baltic, who were invited to Italy by Justinian, against the Ostrogoths, etc.

570-770 They occupy the northern part of Italy, giving name to Lombardy.

756 They are defeated by Pepin.

774 Incorporated in the Franconian empire under Charlemagne.

Arabia and Turkey. (Mohammedan Era.)

On the extinction of the Roman empire, and amidst the great national convulsions thence arising, a new power suddenly burst forth in Arabia, which was excited by Mohammed for the extension of his religion; from which period (622) the Mohammedans date their Hegira, or flight of Mohammed to Mecca. The Arabs (or Saracens) were a people who had been hitherto unsubdued by the conquering nations. Their kingdom was in Yemen (Arabia

A.D.

Felix); and they lived in separate tribes (Bedouins) under Sheikhs or Emirs. Mohammed being everywhere victorious, the Arabians formed a navy, and founded an extensive empire by conquest. They conquered Jerusalem, Phœnicia, Syria, Persia, Egypt, Cyprus, and Rhodes, and the whole northern coast of Africa, as far as the Atlantic ocean. They passed over the Straits of Gibraltar into Europe, and expelled the Goths from Portugal and Spain. While they held possession of the western part of Europe, they attacked Constantinople, their Eastern capital, with their fleet.

730 All Europe trembled with the apprehension of being subjugated by the Mohammedan Arabs; when 732 Charles Martel, the Frank, effected the deliverance of Europe by the victory of Tours, and compelled the Arabs to recross into Spain. The Arabians, however, conquer nearly the whole of the Spanish Peninsula, driving the Goths to the Asturias.

800 The golden period of the Arabian or Saracenic empire, under the Caliphs of Bagdad, during which they cultivated the sciences of astronomy, medicine, chemistry, etc.; the English language still containing many of their technical terms; as algebra, alkali, zenith, etc., and also the numerical figures 1, 2, 3, 4, etc. The Arabian University and library of Cordova, famed for science throughout Europe.

800 The Turks or Tartars on the Altai Mountains advance westward.

840 Employed as mercenaries by the Arabs as a bodyguard, they dispose of the throne, and confine the Khalifat to Bagdad.

868 Achmed, a Turk, seizes Egypt and Syria.

1000 Title of Sultan with a vast empire.

1043 The Turks take Persia.

1072 Conquer Jerusalem. From these Turks (under whom Arabian learning and civilization were annihilated) a new dynasty eventually arises under Othman I., whose successors take possession of Constantinople.

714 Pepin, the "major domo," or chief of the Franks, is succeeded by Charles Martel (his natural son).

732 Subjects several German tribes; and by the victory of Tours he checks the progress of the Arabs.

737-741 Who becomes duke and prince of the Franks.

A.D.

752 His son Pepin is made king of the Franks, and nominal sovereign of Lombardy.

752-911 The second dynasty (that of Charlemagne). In France until 987.

800 Charles the Great raised the empire of the Franks; was crowned Roman emperor for subduing the revolt of the Pope's subjects. He subdued Saxony after a war of 33 years, and introduced Christianity; built towns and fortresses; endowed schools and institutions; encouraged learning, religion, and agriculture. After his death the Franconian empire was disunited, and out of its ruins arose the three kingdoms of France, Germany, and North Italy. The era of Chivalry commenced; knights ruled as feudal lords over their vassals; and burgher right was nowhere to be found.

900-1000 The institutions founded by Charles the Great for education were almost annihilated in the commotions of the Franconian empire. Even the emperors of Germany, and the kings of France, were totally illiterate, being unable either to read or write. Learning was solely confined to the Christian priests. They controlled a superstitious people by their influence, commanded the brave but ignorant knights, and coerced emperors and kings.

France.

987 On the dissolution of the Franconian empire, and the termination of the second dynasty founded by Charlemagne, Hugo Capet, the founder of the third dynasty, was elected King of France.

1125 The fifth dynasty, chiefly Swabian emperors.

1156 Roman law in Germany. Universal prostration to the see of Rome.

1195-1268 Many thousands of subjects sacrificed in the Crusades. Those who returned from Palestine, especially through Greece, acquire knowledge, which lessened their superstition and awoke reflection. Kingly power was increased; and princes perceived that burghers and the peasantry were the firmest supporters of the throne. Burgher rights were enlarged; cities more numerous and flourishing; and the influence of the church declined.

1407 John Huss at Prague enforced his doctrines, and preached against the sale of the "remission of sins." He was burnt; but the flame which he kindled eventually led to the Reformation effected by Luther.

1440 John Gutenburg, a German, invented the art of printing at Mentz, and Peter Schoeffer brought it into operation.

England—The Anglo-Saxons, Danes, Normans, etc.

After the conquest of Britain the Anglo-Saxons divide the country into seven kingdoms.

AS TO THE CONTENTS OF THIS WORK

The maps herewith presented have been brought down to the present day. They are absolutely accurate, very distinct, and, considering their size, remarkable for minuteness of detail. No other maps published afford within so small a compass, such a vast deal of desirable, useful, and carefully edited information. It goes without saying, that in a map measuring 24 or 48 square inches, it would be impossible to legibly locate every town, village, hamlet, river, bay, creek, mountain, and railroad, to be found within the boundaries of a large State; nevertheless, we have succeeded in introducing all the railroads and physical features, and certainly every place of genuine importance, whether viewed from the standpoint of population, or of railroad, manufacturing or commercial interests.

When one considers that the official United States Census reports only 3,783 places with a population exceeding 1,000, and then bears in mind that nearly 18,000 references within the United States are to be found in our Atlas and Gazetteer, it must be obvious that the information supplied in this volume is as minutely detailed as the severest practical test could demand. What is true of the treatment of our own country is practically true of all the rest of the world, and hence, confident that it will meet every reasonable requirement for up-to-date and accurate geographical and statistical information, we incorporate this Atlas and Gazetteer in the Crown Encyclopedia.

UNIVERSAL INDEX

GIVING THE LOCATION OF CITIES, TOWNS, AND PHYSICAL FEATURES AND POPULATION.

For General Table of Contents, locating Countries, etc., and giving Areas in square miles, see page immediately Preceding the Maps.

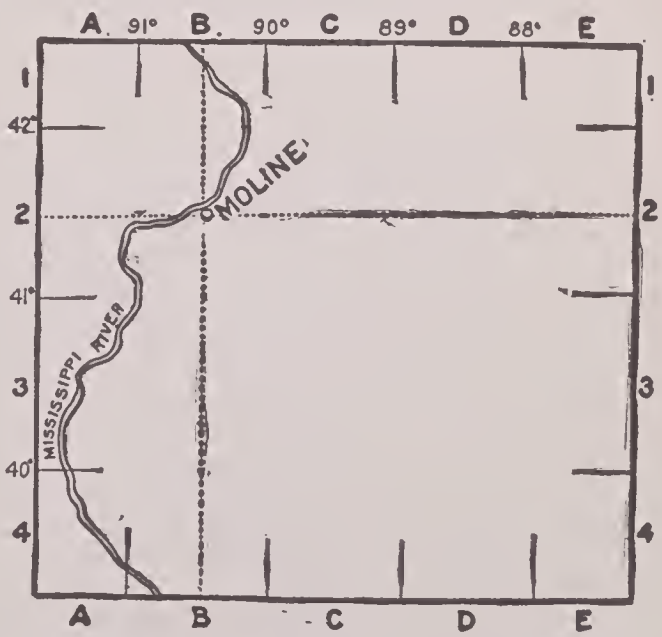
When consulting this Universal Index, do not be satisfied to merely ascertain the location of a town. There is much other information to be had which will greatly aid you in getting wider intelligence concerning the place in which, for the time being, you are interested. Take, for instance, the case of Montgomery, Alabama. Reference to this Index will inform you that Montgomery has a population, according to the last census, of 30,346. It will also inform you that it is located, C 3, on Map No. 10. By consulting the map, you will discover that Montgomery is situated on the Alabama River, and on the line of four railroads and that it is the capital of Alabama. By reference to the General Contents, immediately preceding the Maps, you learn that Alabama has 52,250 square miles, and a population of 1,828,697. Thus you become acquainted with the important facts that Montgomery has 30,346 population, is situated on the Alabama River, is an important railroad centre, and is the capital of a State having an area of 52,250 square miles and a population of 1,828,697.

HOW TO USE THE INDEX MARKS

On every map in this Atlas there are uniform Index Marks, consisting of a Series of Letters in the top and bottom margins and of Numerals in the side margins. The location of a town is found at or near the spot where a line drawn straight down from the Index letter would intersect a line drawn crosswise from the Index numeral.



Take, for example, Moline, Ill. The line devoted to Moline in the Index reads thus, Moline, Ill., 17,248 B 2 20. This line interpreted, would read: Moline, Ill., has a population of 17,248, it is found on page 20 of the maps preceding this index, and is located near the point where a line, drawn downward from the letter B at the top of the map intersects a line drawn crosswise from the figure 2 on the sides of the map, as illustrated in the above diagram.
